A Message Regarding The Corps Network’s June 4 Town Hall “Listen & Reflect”

June 4, 2020

We are happy to invite you to today's Town Hall titled "Listen & Reflect". The focus of this gathering will be to honor the Black lives that have been lost due to systemic racism and police brutality and to listen to the voices of those fighting for change. Due to the emotional nature of these conversations, there may be language or imagery that you might find upsetting. Also, due to the production decisions of certain broadcast news agencies, such imagery may coincide with interviewee's important remarks.

Although we believe in the importance of providing space for reflection and mourning, we understand for some that this imagery may cause more harm than good. With this in mind, please find below the potentially triggering aspects of today’s program. If you or your colleagues believe that such aspects might be harmful, and not helpful, to your mental health and/or the mental health and well-being of those around you, we recommend that you skip this event.

Potentially triggering aspects of this program include:

- Graphic language including profanities and language describing violence
- Stark explanations of the harm and despair caused by systemic racial inequity
- Intense emotional reactions to the impact of systemic racism in the US
- Imagery of police action, sometimes violent, against protesters
- Imagery of rioting and looting
